

ALL SAINTS' CE PRIMARY SCHOOL AUTUMN TERM NEWSLETTER

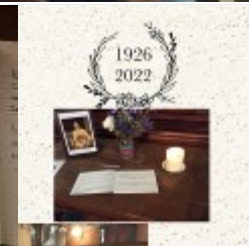

Here we are, already at the end of the second full week of term, with days flying by. It has been a joy to welcome our new Nursery and Reception children, and their parents and carers, this week; our school now feels complete. Meanwhile across the rest of the school, children are settling down well. Do read about some of the other activities which have taken place this week.

It has, of course, been a week like no other as we have watched, and in some cases, witnessed for ourselves the events leading up to Her late Majesty the Queen's funeral on Monday. As you will read below, children have been visiting the church and I have been so impressed with the respect they showed and also with the deep thinking they have been doing about the Queen herself but also about this momentous time in our nation's history. I wish you and your families and restful weekend. Ms Wood

Line of the Week

A new initiative started this week in KS2, aimed at ensuring a calm entrance into the building after playtimes. At every playtime, morning and lunch, some of our House Captains and Vice-Captains along with an adult, chooses the quietest, smartest line. At the end of the week, we total up and the winning class earns some extra playtime the following week. This photo shows how well it can be done!!

Y6 NATIONAL ARCHIVES

On Monday 12th September, Y6 had an online workshop with The National Archives, called Black Victorians. We looked at Census records and other primary sources, acting as History detectives, to find out about the lives of these ordinary people, whose stories are never told.

'I learnt that The National Archives is where millions of documents are kept. I enjoyed finding out true facts.' By Emily

'Our workshop linked with our learning about the British Empire and the slave trade. I found out who Hezekiah Moscow was.' By Darcey

'I have been introduced to Black Victorians; it was enjoyable to learn about stuff that isn't recorded in History books.' By Miguel

'Learning about Victorian times helps us to understand about the British Empire.' By Karim

'The Revenge' was a play

SURREY.

Mr. Ira Aldridge, the African tragedian, made his first appearance at the Surrey Theatre on Monday evening, 20th ult., as Zanga, in the "Revenge." Our illustration represents the last scene of the tragedy, wherein he is trampling on the prostrate Don Alonzo. His reception throughout the performance was flattering; and, as the play progressed, the applause became enthusiastic. Mr. Aldridge possesses an excellent voice, commanding figure, and expressive countenance; to which he adds the advantages of education and study. His dress, which is novel and picturesque, reminds one of the portraits of Abd-el-Kader. Throughout the play he more than realised the high encomiums that had previously been passed upon him; and many who ridiculed the idea of a native-born African successfully representing a dramatic character, retired with very different feelings.
